1. I have been briefed about the CSS and one web framework called Bootstrap and its role in developing flexible web apps. The main styling is stored in an external stylesheet, although the HTML DOM style object has also been used to change some settings while the JavaScript is being loaded. For example the Save button for the edit module has set visibility to “hidden” in the external stylesheet, but the property changes to “visible when the edit button is clicked to avoid potential confusion. Another method I have used to change properties inside JS is the jQuery .css() method. I have found it to be effective in changing background and border properties of objects.

4. Internships are a great way for students to test their skills in real-life situations, explore career options and gain an insight into a company or organization. Taking an internship can also significantly increase your chances of getting a full-time graduate job. It is not at all unusual for employers to make full-time job offers to a large proportion of their interns.
5. Graduation internships are very important, because they substantially increase the chance of graduates finding employment. Internships are also very useful to interns themselves as they offer the chance to find out what working for a particular company, or within a certain industry, is really like. Internships also allow interns to make contacts with managers and recruiters, which can later be used to negotiate full-time employment.
